Grave Rioting Breaks Out in Alexandria, Egypt

MOBS IN UNREST SURGING THROUGH THE CITY STREETS

BURN MOTOR TRUCKS AND COM- MIT OTHER ACTS OF VIOLENCE

EUROPEANS TAKE REFUGE IN THE BOURSE, BRITISH TROOPS SUMMONED

Cairo, Egypt, July 15.—(U.P.)—The army was reported to have taken charge of Alexandria to night. All shops were closed at 6 P. M.

Alexandria, Egypt, July 15.—(U.P.)—Grave rioting broke out here today. Mobs surged through the streets, burning motor trucks and committing other acts of violence.

At least three were killed and 100 injured.

Europeans took refuge in the bourse. British troops were summoned.

Numerous fatalities were reported, as the rioting continued.

The political unrest of the last few weeks flared here when police tried to disperse demonstrators parading the main streets.

The mobs stoned police and firemen who tried to disperse them. Shops along the main streets closed their doors and barred the windows.

It was reported the demonstrations which preceded the rioting were organized by Wafdists as preliminary to starting a strike.

Police fired on the mob from the roof of the law courts. Dead were removed in carts.

A detachment of the Egyptian army occupied Ali Square, the center of the rioting. Reinforcements were enroute from Cairo.

Windows were broken in most of the European shops in the vicinity of the square.

An attempt by the mob to set fire to the police station was frustrated.

Major Fitzpatrick, an English police officer, was wounded in the temple by a stone thrown by a rioter.

Alexandria, Egypt, July 15.—Rioters, inflamed by the political situation and by anti-European sentiment, held sway in the streets of Alexandria today, killing and wounding many, including Europeans.

An official announcement late in the day said 14 had been killed, including one Italian and seven other Europeans. The wounded numbered 250, of whom many were in a serious condition.

Rioting broke out in Mansurah a week ago in connection with the visit there of Naha Pasha, former premier, whose followers are campaigning against the existing government, and six or more persons were killed.

Naha and his ministry resigned several months ago, charging the king with suspending parliament illegally.

As leader of the powerful Wafd party, he demanded the government appear in parliament before the 21st of this month and ask a vote of confidence.

If his demands are not met he has threatened to start a general movement of non-cooperation in the country.

CONFIDES IN DAUGHTER HE WILL KILL SELF

Centerville, Iowa, July 15.—(U.P.)—John Miller, deep in despair because of financial and domestic difficulties, took his 10-year-old daughter in his arms and told her she was going to lose her father.

Estranged from his wife, the middle-aged farmer confided in his young daughter his plans for suicide and left in her keeping his desires for funeral arrangements.

Anxious lest his plans be frustrated, Miller cautioned his daughter repeatedly to tell no one what she was hearing until the night had passed. With that the little girl was sent to the home of a neighbor and true to her promise she kept her grim secret, until the morning, when she asked the neighbors to return with her to her father's farm.

Miller was dead, a victim of strychnine and lye poison.

"Papa said he didn't want a showy funeral," the little girl said.

As chairman of the senate committee investigating campaign funds, Nye opened the second day of his Chicago hearing by calling W. D. Alexander of Bloomington, Ill., who managed Congresswoman McCormick's campaign in McLean county, one of the eight in which no budgets were kept.

Sears became enraged and attacked his daughter when she refused to eat, members of the family said in describing his death. He choked and struck the girl and was throwing dishes at her when she ran into her room, obtained a revolver and began firing, they said. One bullet pierced Sears' heart.

Mrs. Sears said her husband was subject to "frequent spells" and often vented his rage by throwing the nearest object at hand.

Miss Sears was expected to plead not guilty.

Los Angeles, July 15.—(U.P.)—Governor C. C. Young today acted to expedite the return to California of John McDonald, itinerant waiter and eye witness in the state's case against Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

McDonald, who made positive identification of Mooney and Billings at the San Francisco murder trials and since has signed affidavits in repudiation, will be questioned further regarding his conflicting statements, according to the governor.

In a statement to the state's attorney at Baltimore, where McDonald was located after a nation-wide search, the governor said California was willing to defray his expenses to this state.

Taylor said he had read in newspapers of a western physician to reward anyone who would undergo inoculation for the dreaded and little known disease. He was ready, he said, to sacrifice himself. His reason is to gain financial aid for his wife.

Taylor said he had been unemployed for more than a month. He was discharged by a baker "because of business depression." He declared he had been turned away from "every factory in Bridgeport" and "the rent is due tomorrow."

Taylor married Ruth Bromley 11 years ago.

Sliding Wheat Prices are Causing Concern Because of Political Importance Attached

BEING WATCHED WITH ANXIETY BY PRES. HOOVER

ALSO SENATORS AND CONGRESS-
MEN UP FOR RE-
ELECTION

RELINCE STILL PLACED UPON
FEDERAL FARM BOARD
POLICIES

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 15.—(U.P.)—Sliding wheat prices, carrying increased political importance the further down they go, are being watched with anxiety by President Hoover and senators and congressmen up for re-election.

Inability to "peg" the market or to meet the situation with any immediate action is felt by administration leaders.

The president, according to his closest farm adviser, feels there is nothing he can do except to rely upon the federal farm board policies already established. He does not intend to take a hand in the situation personally at this time.

Administration spokesmen feel the market drop is the natural consequence of overproduction, particularly in the southwestern wheat growing area. They frown upon the suggestion of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, that the board buy 100,000,000 more bushels to augment the 60,000,000 bushels purchased before the recent decline.

Such a step would cost in the neighborhood of $78,000,000, they say, adding the question, "What would we do with 160,000,000 bushels of wheat if we bought it?"

The political effects of the situation may be read in the Kansas primaries Aug. 5, when Reed runs for renomination and Senator Henry Allen, friend of the president and sponsor for his policies, seeks the republican senatorial nomination. Allen is opposed by several other candidates.

Administration leaders said today the fight in behalf of the London naval treaty was won, but that the vote probably could not be had until next week.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, alone among the treaty advocates expressed the opinion there was a chance for a vote this week. Reed and the other pro-treaty senators believe new arrivals for the senate's special treaty session have given them control which all last week lay with the anti-treaty minority.

The administration has headed off a sharp fight by deciding to accept a modified version of the reservation proposed by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, to safeguard the treaty against secret papers or secret understandings.

"We have a quorum of pro-treaty senators," Reed told the United Press. "We are going to accept the amended Norris resolution, but we have the votes to block any other reservations and will do so."

Washington, July 15.—The crisis of declining wheat prices was discussed at length by President Hoover with his cabinet today after Secretary of Agriculture Hyde had reported on the situation disclosed during his western tour.

Various methods of coping with the problem were debated, with Hyde known to be in opposition to the plan of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, to have the federal farm board purchase millions of bushels of wheat in order to "peg" the price before it dips further.

There was no indication the administration had any intention of adopting the Capper idea.

Kansas City, Mo., July 15.—While echoes of the government's campaign for wheat acreage continued to reverberate through the winter wheat belt, crop reports today revealed an estimated total production for six states of 305,432,000 bushels.

These figures, the July 1 estimates of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, compare with an actual yield last year of 302,848,000 bushels, and a five year average, 1924-1928, of 292,391,000 bushels.

From a total estimated acreage of 23,319,000 this represents an average per acre yield for the entire area of approximately 13.1 bushels.

Kansas led in total production and total acreage, while Nebraska's per acre yield was the highest.

CLAIMS HEAVY CASUALTIES IN NICARAGUA FIGHTING

Mexico City, July 15.—(U.P.)—Heavy casualties among United States marines and Nicaraguan constabulary were claimed by Gen. Augustino Sandino, leader of the Nicaraguan rebels, in a statement released last night by his Mexico City representative.

Encounters between rebels and the combined forces of the marines and constabulary to June 30 had resulted in 300 killed and approximately 500 wounded among the combined troops, while only 43 of Sandino's followers were killed and 85 wounded, the statement claimed. Seventeen encounters were reported.

FLINT, MILLIONAIRE
CALIFORNIAN

Los Angeles, July 15.—(U.P.)—Seven years of brooding over a fancied wrong were packed into the half-crazed impulse of a second that drove Frank D. Keaton to shoot and kill Motley H. Flint, millionaire Southern California financial leader, as he stepped from the witness stand in a superior court here.

Alienists who examined the middle aged poverty stricken real estate man after the death of Flint yesterday advanced this theory today as the motive prompting Keaton to fire three fatal shots at the banker and then collapse in his seat, moaning, "Oh, my God, he ruined me!"

Flint, retired banker, Masonic leader and brother of the late United States Senator Frank P. Flint, had been testifying before Judge Frank C. Collier in a suit involving a loan made the bank with which he formerly was associated.

The banker stepped from the stand and spoke to a friend, Mrs. Louis Selznick. His words of greeting to her were his last.

The court room turned into pandemonium as Keaton leaped to his feet and fired on Flint, the bullets entering the banker's throat and jaw. Flint reeled and fell at Mrs. Selznick's feet—killed instantly, coroner's physicians said.

Despite the doctors' efforts, three of the children, Elizabeth 13, Fanny 12, and Alice 4, died early today. Stanton was in a critical condition, but the doctors had hopes of saving Mrs. Stanton and another child, William Cortwright, 5, who has lived with the Stantons since his father's death a year ago.

FRANK GOLDSBOROUGH FOUND
IN WRECKAGE IN VER-

EXAMINING PHYSICIANS REPORT THAT HIS CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Bennington, Vt., July 15.—(U.P.)—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old aviator, suffered a skull fracture when the airplane he was piloting crashed into a tree in dense woods south of Woodford yesterday, examination by physicians at Putnam Memorial hospital here disclosed today.

Drs. J. B. Lane, John Trotter and J. C. Armstrong reported his condition was critical. No other bones were broken, although the youth's legs had been pinned in the wreckage.

Mrs. Gertrude Goldsborough, mother of the injured pilot, went to the hospital shortly after his arrival.

Goldsborough's eyes were closed as the searchers gently lifted his limp form from the twisted cockpit of the airplane after breaking part of the frame work that encased him.

The four men improvised a stretcher from their outer coats and started the slow trudge through the woodland waste.

The nearest wagon path, Dunville Road, was four miles distant. The rescue party was forced to bear its burden at a snail-like pace over the hilly country. It took them a full two hours to reach Dunville Road.

Fortunately, one of the many motor vehicles that had been scattered throughout the vicinity was parked at a point near where the rescuers emerged from the forest.

The vehicle, a motor truck from Bennington, was summoned alongside and Goldsborough, still unconscious, transferred.

The truck then started for Putnam Memorial Hospital in Bennington, at least a dozen miles away. Allen and his companions said there were no indications Goldsborough had suffered broken limbs. Donald Mockler, 25, publicity agent, who was riding with Goldsborough when his plane crashed yesterday, had expressed the opinion the young pilot's legs might have been broken.

Mockler, who was thrown clear when the crash occurred, was unable to extricate Goldsborough from the tangled cockpit, and trekked to Bennington for aid. He led the first searching party that started out from Bennington last night.

Woodsford, Vt., July 15.—Unconscious but alive, Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old aviator who was trapped in the wreckage of an airplane which crashed in mountainous country near here yesterday, was found by four Bennington men today.

OFFERS TO SUBMIT
SELF FOR EXPERIMENT

Bridgeport, Conn., July 15.—(U.P.)—Unemployed and penniless, Hester Taylor, 35, offered today to submit himself to a scientist for experiments with trachoma in exchange for financial aid for his wife, Ruth.

Taylor said he had read in newspapers of a western physician to reward anyone who would undergo inoculation for the dreaded and little known disease. He was ready, he said, to sacrifice himself. His reason is to gain financial aid for his wife.

Taylor said he had been unemployed for more than a month. He was discharged by a baker "because of business depression." He declared he had been turned away from "every factory in Bridgeport" and "the rent is due tomorrow."

Taylor married Ruth Bromley 11 years ago.

Sliding Wheat Prices are Causing Concern
Because of Political Importance AttachedBEING WATCHED WITH ANXIETY
BY PRES. HOOVERALSO SENATORS AND CONGRESS-
MEN UP FOR RE-
ELECTIONRELANCE STILL PLACED UPON
FEDERAL FARM BOARD
POLICIES

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 15.—Sliding wheat prices, carrying increased political importance the further down they go, are being watched with anxiety by President Hoover and senators and congressmen up for re-election.

Inability to "peg" the market or to meet the situation with any immediate action is felt by administration leaders.

The president, according to his closest farm adviser, feels there is nothing he can do except to rely upon the federal farm board policies already established. He does not intend to take a hand in the situation personally at this time.

Administration spokesmen feel the market drop is the natural consequence of overproduction, particularly in the southwestern wheat growing area. They frown upon the suggestion of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, that the board buy 100,000,000 more bushels to augment the 60,000,000 bushels purchased before the recent decline.

Such a step would cost in the neighborhood of $78,000,000, they say, adding the question, "What would we do with 160,000,000 bushels of wheat if we bought it?"

The political effects of the situation may be read in the Kansas primaries Aug. 5, when Reed runs for renomination and Senator Henry Allen, friend of the president and sponsor for his policies, seeks the republican senatorial nomination. Allen is opposed by several other candidates.

Administration leaders said today the fight in behalf of the London naval treaty was won, but that the vote probably could not be had until next week.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, alone among the treaty advocates expressed the opinion there was a chance for a vote this week. Reed and the other pro-treaty senators believe new arrivals for the senate's special treaty session have given them control which all last week lay with the anti-treaty minority.

The administration has headed off a sharp fight by deciding to accept a modified version of the reservation proposed by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, to safeguard the treaty against secret papers or secret understandings.

"We have a quorum of pro-treaty senators," Reed told the United Press. "We are going to accept the amended Norris resolution, but we have the votes to block any other reservations and will do so."

These figures, the July 1 estimates of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, compare with an actual yield last year of 302,848,000 bushels, and a five year average, 1924-1928, of 292,391,000 bushels.

From a total estimated acreage of 23,319,000 this represents an average per acre yield for the entire area of approximately 13.1 bushels.

Kansas led in total production and total acreage, while Nebraska's per acre yield was the highest.

Various methods of coping with the problem were debated, with Hyde known to be in opposition to the plan of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, to have the federal farm board purchase millions of bushels of wheat in order to "peg" the price before it dips further.

There was no indication the administration had any intention of adopting the Capper idea.

Kansas City, Mo., July 15.—While echoes of the government's campaign for wheat acreage continued to reverberate through the winter wheat belt, crop reports today revealed an estimated total production for six states of 305,432,000 bushels.

Washington, July 15.—The crisis of declining wheat prices was discussed at length by President Hoover with his cabinet today after Secretary of Agriculture Hyde had reported on the situation disclosed during his western tour.

UNKNOWN ILLNESS
ATTACKS FAMILY3 CHILDREN OF WILBUR STANTON
FAMILY, LAFAYETTE,
N. J., DIE

Lafayette, N. J., July 15.—(U.P.)—Three children of the family of Wilbur Stanton were dead, Stanton was dying, and three doctors were fighting desperately today to save his wife and a fourth child from death from an illness as yet unnamed, but which is apparently some sort of poisoning.

Dr. Amar Voorhes, a wealthy, well-known farmer, last night found the entire family violently ill. He at once called Dr. Blase Cole, state senator from Sussex county, and Dr. Martin Quirk.

Despite the doctors' efforts, three of the children, Elizabeth 13, Fanny 12, and Alice 4, died early today. Stanton was in a critical condition, but the doctors had hopes of saving Mrs. Stanton and another child, William Cortwright, 5, who has lived with the Stantons since his father's death a year ago.

FLINT, MILLIONAIRE
CALIFORNIAN

Los Angeles, July 15.—(U.P.)—Seven years of brooding over a fancied wrong were packed into the half-crazed impulse of a second that drove Frank D. Keaton to shoot and kill Motley H. Flint, millionaire Southern California financial leader, as he stepped from the witness stand in a superior court here.

Alienists who examined the middle aged poverty stricken real estate man after the death of Flint yesterday advanced this theory today as the motive prompting Keaton to fire three fatal shots at the banker and then collapse in his seat, moaning, "Oh, my God, he ruined me!"

Flint, retired banker, Masonic leader and brother of the late United States Senator Frank P. Flint, had been testifying before Judge Frank C. Collier in a suit involving a loan made the bank with which he formerly was associated.

The banker stepped from the stand and spoke to a friend, Mrs. Louis Selznick. His words of greeting to her were his last.

The court room turned into pandemonium as Keaton leaped to his feet and fired on Flint, the bullets entering the banker's throat and jaw. Flint reeled and fell at Mrs. Selznick's feet—killed instantly, coroner's physicians said.

FRANK GOLDSBOROUGH FOUND
IN WRECKAGE IN VER-
MONT WOODS

Bennington, Vt., July 15.—(U.P.)—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old aviator, suffered a skull fracture when the airplane he was piloting crashed into a tree in dense woods south of Woodford yesterday, examination by physicians at Putnam Memorial hospital here disclosed today.

Drs. J. E. Lane, John Trotter and J. C. Armstrong reported his condition was critical. No other bones were broken, although the youth's legs had been pinned in the wreckage.

Mrs. Gertrude Goldsborough, mother of the injured pilot, went to the hospital shortly after his arrival.

Goldsborough's eyes were closed as the searchers gently lifted his limp form from the twisted cockpit of the airplane after breaking part of the frame work that encased him.

The four men improvised a stretcher from their outer coats and started the slow trudge through the woodland waste.

The nearest wagon path, Dunville Road, was four miles distant. The rescue party was forced to bear its burden at a snail-like pace over the hilly country. It took them a full two hours to reach Dunville Road.

Fortunately, one of the many motor vehicles that had been scattered throughout the vicinity was parked at a point near where the rescuers emerged from the forest.

The vehicle, a motor truck from Bennington, was summoned alongside and Goldsborough, still unconscious, transferred.

The truck then started for Putnam Memorial Hospital in Bennington, at least a dozen miles away. Allen and his companions said there were no indications Goldsborough had suffered broken limbs. Donald Mockler, 25, publicity agent, who was riding with Goldsborough when their plane crashed yesterday, had expressed the opinion the young pilot's legs might have been broken.

Mockler, who was thrown clear when the crash occurred, was unable to extricate Goldsborough from the tangled cockpit, and trekked to Bennington for aid. He led the first searching party that started out from Bennington last night.

Woodford, Vt., July 15.—Unconscious but alive, Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old aviator who was trapped in the wreckage of an airplane which crashed in mountainous country near here yesterday, was found by four Bennington men today.

One of the searching party, Fred Allen, sighted the wreckage at a point between Sucker Pond and Stamford Meadows, about eight miles south of here. With his companions, Albert Fontaineau, Leonard Lawrence and Fred Johnson, Allen extricated the youthful pilot.

C. W. SCRUTCHIN DIES IN BEMIDJI

Colored Attorney of Wide Reputation
Was Well Known in
Brainerd

Charles W. Scrutchin, negro, for the past 31 years a resident of Bemidji and a practicing attorney there, was found dead in the kitchen of his home at 820 Bemidji avenue at about 11 a. m. Monday, by his housekeeper, Mrs. Weber, when she returned from a visit, according to a report published in the Bemidji Pioneer. "Mr. Scrutchin was well known in Brainerd and had cases in the district court here.

The exact age of Mr. Scrutchin was not known to friends and as far as is known he has no relatives living. His wife died several years ago. Mr. Scrutchin had been suffering from diabetes for the past five years and had been in ill health most of that time.

Atty. P. J. Russell, a close friend of Mr. Scrutchin, declared that he held the highest respect of the members of the bar, both as a man and as an attorney. Mr. Russell was requested to make the funeral arrangements. Mrs. Weber stated that she left the house about 8:30 a. m. and that the elderly man had not arisen at that time. It is thought that he attempted to get himself some breakfast and collapsed soon afterward.

CASE DISMISSED, MAN REARRESTED

Orren Behme of Barrows Recalled
After Being Cleared of Drunken Driving Count

CONTINUED THURSDAY

Original Arrest Was Made on June 27 at Corner of Sixth and Maple Street

Orren Behme of Barrows was arraigned in municipal court yesterday afternoon before Judge J. H. Warner on a charge of driving while drunk. He was arrested on June 27 by State Patrolman J. H. Morrison at the corner of Maple and Sixth streets. Judge Warner did not deem the evidence presented as sufficient to hold the man over to district court, where the case would have to be tried, and dismissed the case. Officer Morrison, who evidently has more evidence, immediately rearrested the man on the same charge.

C. W. SCRUTCHIN DIES IN BEMIDJI

Colored Attorney of Wide Reputation
Was Well Known in
Brainerd

Charles W. Scrutchin, negro, for the past 31 years a resident of Bemidji and a practicing attorney there, was found dead in the kitchen of his home at 820 Bemidji avenue at about 11 a. m. Monday, by his housekeeper, Mrs. Weber, when she returned from a visit, according to a report published in the Bemidji Pioneer. Mr. Scrutchin was well known in Brainerd and had cases in the district court here.

The exact age of Mr. Scrutchin was not known to friends and as far as is known he has no relatives living. His wife died several years ago. Mr. Scrutchin had been suffering from diabetes for the past five years and had been in ill health most of that time.

Atty. P. J. Russell, a close friend of Mr. Scrutchin, declared that he held the highest respect of the members of the bar, both as a man and as an attorney. Mr. Russell was requested to make the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Weber stated that she left the house about 8:30 a. m. and that the elderly man had not arisen at that time. It is thought that he attempted to get himself some breakfast and collapsed soon afterward.

The deceased was born during the time of slavery in the state of Virginia. He worked for a number of years as a porter on the Northern Pacific railroad and earned enough money to complete a course at the law school at the University of Michigan. He came to Bemidji in 1889, where he immediately began to practice law and became one of the outstanding attorneys of the northwest, being especially well known for his ability in criminal cases.

Hurt as Cars Come Together

Mrs. Les Swanson of Gilbert Lake and two small children, Lois, aged 1 and Hilding, aged 3, were hurt last evening at 7 o'clock when the car which Mrs. Swanson was driving collided with another car driven by V. L. Hitch.

Mrs. Swanson was driving east on Laurel street and Hitch was going west on the same street. Mrs. Swanson started to turn to the left on Fourth street when the two cars came together. The two children were out about the head with flying glass when the Swanson windshield was shattered and Mrs. Swanson suffered injuries to her left hip and side. The children were taken to St. Joseph's hospital for medical attention. Neither car was damaged to any great extent.

Increasing Value of Tourist Trade

THE Mankato Free Press and Bemidji Pioneer have dwelt on the summary of H. C. Hotaling's address on the subject, "Are You Sold on Your Own State," delivered before the Eighth District Advertising Federation of America, in which the tourist commissioner and secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association stressed "one of the most important questions before Minnesota in the present day."

"Mr. Hotaling pointed out that extending a welcome hand to the tourist is one of the most certain ways of bringing new citizens, new capital and new life into any community. Last year he estimated more than 1,600,000 tourists visited Minnesota and spent in excess of $37,000,000 in the state. During that period they contributed approximately $850,000 through the state gasoline tax toward upkeep of Minnesota highways.

"Tourist traffic, once built up, continues coming to a state from year to year if the natural attractions and outdoor recreational facilities are good. In Minnesota they cannot be equalled. The great northern areas of forest, lakes and wilderness will be a natural out-of-doors playground for generations to come. The work that is being done now to attract tourists and vacationists there is only a pioneering effort. The number of visitors will increase with each passing year, as highways are improved, as word of the charm of the Minnesota northwoods spreads and as vacationing yearly becomes the common pursuit of an increasing number of citizens.

"Minnesota as a state is just beginning to appreciate one of her greatest assets. And credit for bringing this vision and the possibilities it holds, both for the present and the future, to the attention of the state and the country generally, is due in a large measure to Mr. Hotaling's efforts in the position he now holds. Both he and the organization he represents are deserving of greater assistance and co-operation in their work."

Butter Prices Here and There

THERE may be a variance of opinion as to the new tariff scales and schedules, but there is no doubt about it protecting butter.

As the Long Prairie Leader remarks, "the next time anyone tells you that the tariff on butter does not mean dollars and cents to the dairy farmer, ask him to tell you the price of butter now in Denmark, London and New Zealand. The prices in those places are averaging from 12 to 16 cents per pound less than they are in this country. If we had no tariff, there would be large shipments of butter from New Zealand and Denmark. But the butter tariff of 12 cents per pound (under the new law it is now 14 cents) keeps out these shipments and saves the market from a competition that would bring down the Todd county butterfat price to a level with the prices abroad.

"Butter prices are not satisfactory, but what would they be if those who fought the tariff bill had had their way and either reduced the rate or taken it off entirely? Business conditions are not the best and commodity prices of all kinds are down. They would be down still more if foreigners could flood our markets with their goods and products.

"Business conditions will pick up. No question about that, and they are going to pick up in this country before they do in foreign lands. When they do, the tariff is going to still further preserve the home market with its better prices for the home producer. The tariff means that better markets and the increased demand will be for the home farmer and the home producer—not for the foreigner. Talk that over with the next man who comes around and tries to tell you the new tariff law is a fake prosperity measure."

Selecting Coach at High School

BRAINERD schools are entitled to the best possible coach and one especially fitted to make basketball a successful pursuit in the curriculum of sports. Then there is also the wider area of athletics and physical education in general.

In universities it is football which carries the burden of all the other sports. At Brainerd high school the outranging and most important game is basketball. It draws increasing attendance of students as well as a large adult body. Coupled with the new high school gymnasium, basketball has drawn the attention of the whole district to Brainerd.

Physical education in general mapped out for Brainerd schools is important, but the coach to be selected should also show a particular penchant in bringing out the best basketball talent in Brainerd and developing teams which at least equal and may excel those of past years.

The school board is working earnestly examining into the qualifications and capabilities of 50 or more applicants for the position of coach.

Quack Grass a Real Pest

QUACK grass is a real pest in many lawns. The weed has a vigorous growth and resists extermination. For small spots, says an authority, one may use a spray of one pound sodium chlorate to one gallon of water. Apply it at the highest state of growth. Two or three applications at intervals of three or four weeks will be necessary. The sodium chlorate may be bought at any drug store. One may also dig up the scattered plants.

For larger areas plow them when in blossom time, keep black for the balance of the season, followed by a cultivated crop or smother crop such as buckwheat or millet seeded heavily.

THEY catch large ones at Traverse City, Mich. A six foot six inches in length sturgeon caught there weighed 150 pounds. His girth measured three feet. This sturgeon resembles some of the giant muskies caught in these northern waters.

Increasing Value of Tourist Trade

THE Mankato Free Press and Bemidji Pioneer have dwelt on the summary of H. C. Hotaling's address on the subject, "Are You Sold on Your Own State," delivered before the Eighth District Advertising Federation of America, in which the tourist commissioner and secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association stressed "one of the most important questions before Minnesota in the present day."

"Mr. Hotaling pointed out that extending a welcome hand to the tourist is one of the most certain ways of bringing new citizens, new capital and new life into any community. Last year he estimated more than 1,600,000 tourists visited Minnesota and spent in excess of $37,000,000 in the state. During that period they contributed approximately $850,000 through the state gasoline tax toward upkeep of Minnesota highways.

"Tourist traffic, once built up, continues coming to a state from year to year if the natural attractions and outdoor recreational facilities are good. In Minnesota they cannot be equalled. The great northern areas of forest, lakes and wilderness will be a natural out-of-doors playground for generations to come. The work that is being done now to attract tourists and vacationists there is only a pioneering effort. The number of visitors will increase with each passing year, as highways are improved, as word of the charm of the Minnesota northwoods spreads and as vacationing yearly becomes the common pursuit of an increasing number of citizens.

"Minnesota as a state is just beginning to appreciate one of her greatest assets. And credit for bringing this vision and the possibilities it holds, both for the present and the future, to the attention of the state and the country generally, is due in a large measure to Mr. Hotaling's efforts in the position he now holds. Both he and the organization he represents are deserving of greater assistance and co-operation in their work."

Butter Prices Here and There

THERE may be a variance of opinion as to the new tariff scales and schedules, but there is no doubt about it protecting butter.

As the Long Prairie Leader remarks, "the next time anyone tells you that the tariff on butter does not mean dollars and cents to the dairy farmer, ask him to tell you the price of butter now in Denmark, London and New Zealand. The prices in those places are averaging from 12 to 16 cents per pound less than they are in this country. If we had no tariff, there would be large shipments of butter from New Zealand and Denmark. But the butter tariff of 12 cents per pound (under the new law it is now 14 cents) keeps out these shipments and saves the market from a competition that would bring down the Todd county butterfat price to a level with the prices abroad.

"Butter prices are not satisfactory, but what would they be if those who fought the tariff bill had had their way and either reduced the rate or taken it off entirely? Business conditions are not the best and commodity prices of all kinds are down. They would be down still more if foreigners could flood our markets with their goods and products.

"Business conditions will pick up. No question about that, and they are going to pick up in this country before they do in foreign lands. When they do, the tariff is going to still further preserve the home market with its better prices for the home producer. The tariff means that better markets and the increased demand will be for the home farmer and the home producer—not for the foreigner. Talk that over with the next man who comes around and tries to tell you the new tariff law is a fake prosperity measure."

Selecting Coach at High School

BRAINERD schools are entitled to the best possible coach and one especially fitted to make basketball a successful pursuit in the curriculum of sports. Then there is also the wider area of athletics and physical education in general.

In universities it is football which carries the burden of all the other sports. At Brainerd high school the outranking and most important game is basketball. It draws increasing attendance of students as well as a large adult body. Coupled with the new high school gymnasium, basketball has drawn the attention of the whole district to Brainerd.

Physical education in general mapped out for Brainerd schools is important, but the coach to be selected should also show a particular penchant in bringing out the best basketball talent in Brainerd and developing teams which at least equal and may excel those of past years.

The school board is working earnestly examining into the qualifications and capabilities of 50 or more applicants for the position of coach.

Quack Grass a Real Pest

QUACK grass is a real pest in many lawns. The weed has a vigorous growth and resists extermination. For small spots, says an authority, one may use a spray of one pound sodium chlorate to one gallon of water. Apply it at the highest state of growth. Two or three applications at intervals of three or four weeks will be necessary. The sodium chlorate may be bought at any drug store. One may also dig up the scattered plants.

For larger areas plow them when in blossom time, keep black for the balance of the season, followed by a cultivated crop or smother crop such as buckwheat or millet seeded heavily.

THEY catch large ones at Traverse City, Mich. A six foot six inches in length sturgeon caught there weighed 150 pounds. His girth measured three feet. This sturgeon resembles some of the giant muskies caught in these northern waters.

CLIMAXING a week of agricultural activity, the twelfth annual meeting of the Minnesota Farm Bureau will be held in St. Paul next year, January 20 to 22 inclusive.

BOXING EXPERTS PICK MANDELL TO WIN OVER AL SINGER

BOXERS MEET THURSDAY IN 15 ROUND FIGHT

NEW YORK CHALLENGER AN 8
TO 5 BETTING FAVORITE
IN METROPOLIS

SINGER'S RECORD SHOWS LITTLE TO QUALIFY HIM AS A TITLE
CONTENDER

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, July 15.—Although reports that Thursday's 15-round world lightweight championship bout is "in the bag" for Al Singer have made the New York challenger an 8 to 5 betting favorite, boxing circles are almost unanimous in picking Champion Sammy Mandell to retain his title.

Singer's record shows little to qualify him as a title contender and only the influence of the powerful clique financially interested in his career enabled him to get the Mandell bout without first proving his right by meeting the two leading contenders, Jack (Kid) Berg and Tony Canzonieri.

Investigation showed no evidence of dishonesty in connection with the bout and sport writers believe the "wise money" favors Singer solely because of the gamblers' conviction that the clique controlling the New Yorker takes no chances in matching their pretensions.

Singer has been carefully "built up" by meeting second rate opponents and has won numerous queer appearing victories.

Mandell has withstood the heaviest punches of Jimmy McLarnin, acknowledged peer of present day punchers, for 15 rounds and is a master boxer. He is reputed to be slipping, but if he is one-half as good as he was when he fought McLarnin he should give the inexperienced Singer a bad beating.

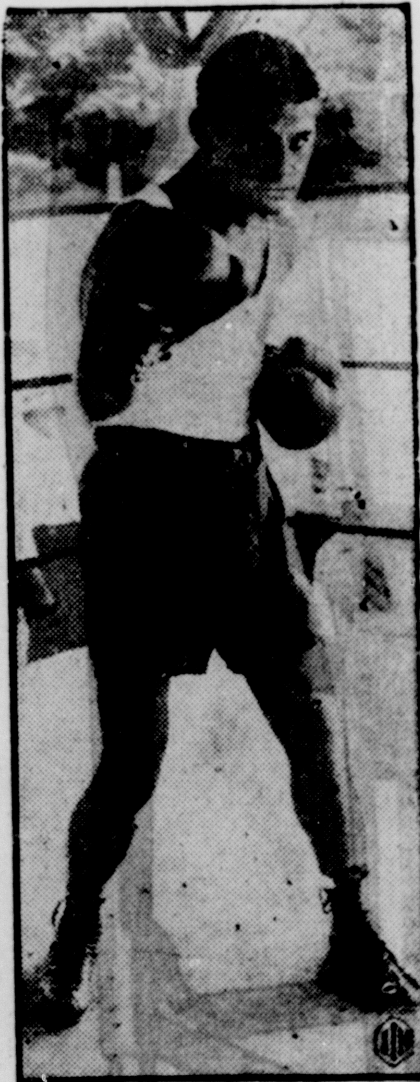

Both fighters completed their training yesterday with impressive workouts and will indulge in only light gymnasium work today and tomorrow. Mandell removed all worries about his inability to make the lightweight limit by weighing in at 135 pounds after yesterday's boxing session and said he would be strong at the weight.

Sammy is indignant at rumors that he is selling his title and said he had $50,000 to bet that he would win.

KID CHOCOLATE 3 TO 1 FAVORITE TO BEAT QUADRINI

New York, July 15.—(U.P.)—Kid Chocolate, undefeated Cuban featherweight, has been established as a 3 to 1 favorite to defeat Luigi Quadrini in their 10-round bout at Queensboro stadium tonight.

Atlanta, July 15.—(U.P.)—Bobby Jones went back to his law office the routine of a private citizen again today.

The king of golf, honored by the most whole hearted outpouring of his city's thousands, had but to look at a huge golden key to see tangible evidence of an epochal welcome home.

Probably half the city's 330,000 managed in some way to participate directly or indirectly in the official parade, or in the formal ceremonies at the city hall.

Bobby himself described the welcome the greatest event in his life. The champion intimated he probably would not touch a golf club until next week end.

BOARD IN SESSION UNTIL AFTER
MIDNIGHT HOUR LAST NIGHT,
CONSIDERS MUCH BUSINESS

The school board considered the matter of a new coach at their session last evening, but were unable to come to a decision. The coach selection was only one point of an evening full of business, including letting of Garfield school contracts, etc., which continued until a late hour.

From the 50 applications before the board, the choice for coach has narrowed down to two, Claude Miller of Valley City, N. D., and A. L. Simso of Minneapolis.

Mr. Miller has a remarkable record in basketball, for the three years he has been at Valley City he has placed his team twice at the head of state high school basketball championship two years in succession. He is also a good all-around coach.

A. L. Simso of Minneapolis is a graduate of Carleton and also spoken highly of as a coach of merit.

Action on coach selection is expected to be definitely settled at the adjourned meeting of the school board to be held next Monday evening.

CLOSE to forty years ago, through 1911, the silvering "Fox" of the Washington Senators, in 1912 became manager of the Senators, attaining the club presidency in 1921.

That brief survey of "Griff's" remarkable baseball career is given as the background for some of his achievements thus far this season.

These center, for example, on his trades—most notably the deal with the St. Louis Browns whereby Washington secured Pitcher Crowder and Outfielder Manush in exchange for the great but fading "Goose" Goslin.

Then he traded Pitcher Braxton and Catcher Tate to the White Sox for the colorful and coming "Art the Great" Shires. Critics agree that "The Silver Fox" got the best of those deals; some even going so far as to predict that such transactions will lead to the Senators getting into the next World Series.

"Griff" long has been noted for his smart trades. He also spends money liberally when sure of the talent at stake, but his genius best shows in swaps.

Incidentally, the "Fox" lists among his most useful assets, Walter Johnson, who as team manager, seems to loom as great as a pilot as he did for many years as a pitcher.

The "Fox" and the brainy "Barney"—what a managerial combination "Griff" and Sir Walter make!

Investigation showed no evidence of dishonesty in connection with the bout and sport writers believe the "wise money" favors Singer solely because of the gamblers' conviction that the clique controlling the New Yorker take no chances in matching their protégé.

Singer has been carefully "built up" by meeting second rate opponents and has won numerous queer appearing victories.

Mandell has withstood the heaviest punches of Jimmy McLarnin, acknowledged peer of present day punchers, for 15 rounds and is a master boxer. He is reputed to be slipping, but if he is one-half as good as he was when he fought McLarnin he should give the inexperienced Singer a bad beating.

Both fighters completed their training yesterday with impressive workouts and will indulge in only light gymnasium work today and tomorrow. Mandell removed all worries about his inability to make the lightweight limit by weighing in at 135 pounds after yesterday's boxing session and said he would be strong at the weight.

Sammy is indignant at rumors that he is selling his title and said he had $50,000 to bet that he would win.

BOBBY JONES NOW BACK IN LAW OFFICE

Atlanta, July 15.—(U.P.)—Bobby Jones went back to his law office the routine of a private citizen again today.

The king of golf, honored by the most wholehearted outpouring of his city's thousands, had but to look at a huge golden key to see tangible evidence of an epochal welcome home.

Probably half the city's 330,000 managed in some way to participate directly or indirectly in the official parade, or in the formal ceremonies at the city hall.

Bobby himself described the welcome the greatest event in his life. The champion intimated he probably would not touch a golf club until next week end.

CHOICE NARROWS DOWN TO TWO OF THE APPLICANTS

CLAUDE MILLER OF VALLEY

OF MINNEAPOLIS

BOARD IN SESSION UNTIL AFTER
MIDNIGHT HOUR LAST NIGHT,
CONSIDERS MUCH BUSINESS

The school board considered the matter of a new coach at their session last evening, but were unable to come to a decision. The coach selection was only one point of an evening full of business, including letting of Garfield school contracts, etc., which continued until a late hour.

From the 50 applications before the board, the choice for coach has narrowed down to two, Claude Miller of Valley City, N. D., and A. L. Simso of Minneapolis.

Mr. Miller has a remarkable record in basketball, for the three years he has been at Valley City he has placed his team twice at the head of state high school play, winning the state high school basketball championship two years in succession. He is also a good all-around coach.

A. L. Simso of Minneapolis is a graduate of Carleton and also spoken highly of as a coach of merit. Action on coach selection is expected to be definitely settled at the adjourned meeting of the school board to be held next Monday evening.

CLOSE to forty years ago, through 1911, the silvering "Fox" Clarke Griffith, now president of the Washington Senators, piloted the Cincinnati Reds and in 1912 became manager of the Senators, attaining the club presidency in 1921.

That brief survey of "Griff's" remarkable baseball career is given as the background for some of his achievements thus far this season.

These center, for example, on his trades—most notably the deal with the St. Louis Browns whereby Washington secured Pitcher Crowder and Outfielder Manush in exchange for the great but fading "Goose" Goslin.

Then he traded Pitcher Braxton and Catcher Tate to the White Sox for the colorful and coming "Art the Great" Shirea. Critics agree that "The Silver Fox" got the best of those deals; some even going so far as to predict that such transactions will lead to the Senators getting into the next World Series.

"Griff" long has been noted for his smart trades. He also spends money liberally when sure of the talent at stake, but his genius best shows in swaps.

Incidentally, the "Fox" lists among his most useful assets, Walter Johnson, who as team manager, seems to loom as great as a pilot as he did for many years as a pitcher.

The "Fox" and the brainy "Barney"—what a managerial combination "Griff" and Sir Walter make!

The NEW Maytag Roller Water Remover has an enclosed positive-action, automatic drain. The flexible top roll and hard bottom roll extract the water evenly from all parts of the garment and spare the buttons.

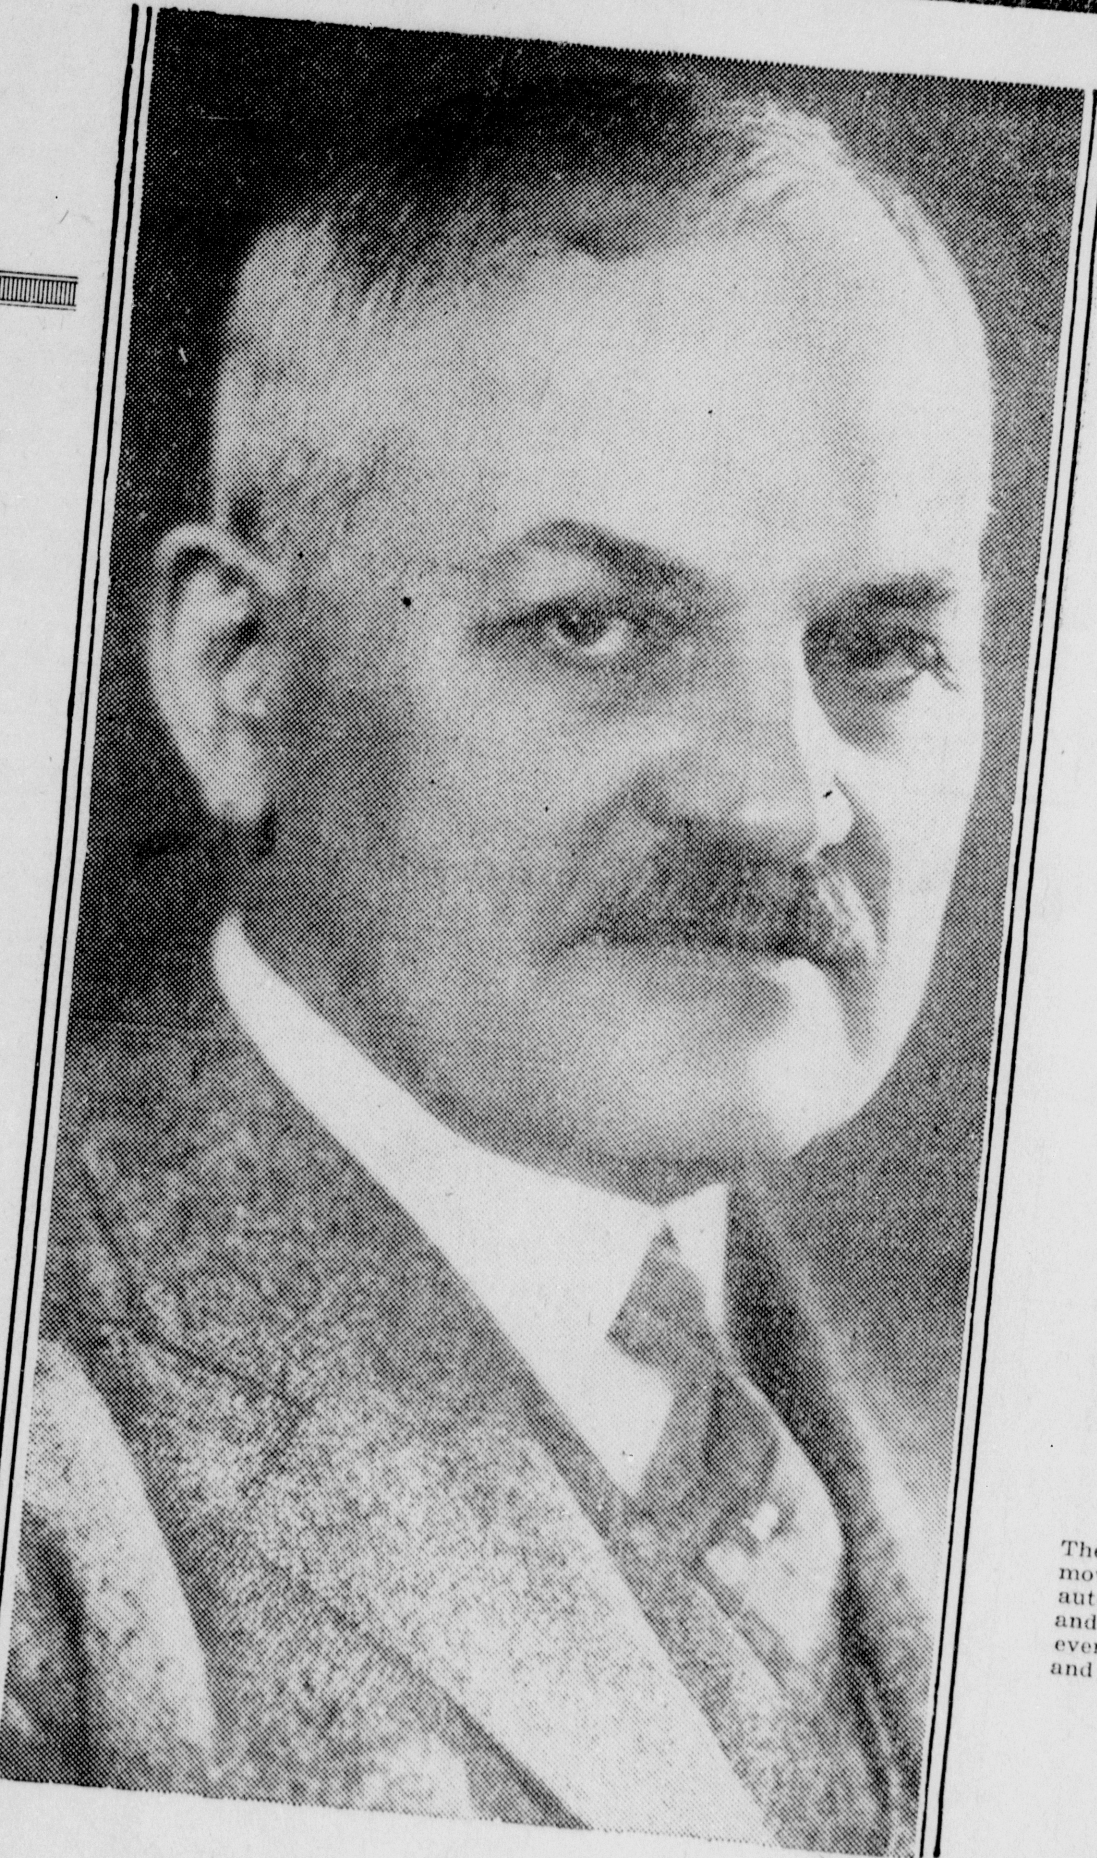

The fundamental sound prosperity of the country and the northwest is indicated by the demand for the NEW Maytag introduced March 9th by the world's largest washer factory. With a favorable start for the new year, following another record Maytag year in 1929, there is every indication that Maytag will maintain in 1930 the world leadership which it has enjoyed for seven consecutive years. The northwest leads the country in the per capita sale of Maytags and in the proportion of Maytags sold to farm houses.

Maytag advertising for several years has been confined largely to newspapers. Maytag success is a tribute to the value of newspaper advertising, and to the Dispatch, which has carried Maytag advertising consistently. The Dispatch is an important factor in the home life of Brainerd and vicinity. By giving accurate, public-spirited news, it has established a reader confidence which has proved highly valuable to the many advertisers which use its columns.

CHAIRMAN

Brainerd Dispatch,
Brainerd, Minnesota.

Gentlemen:

Newspaper advertising is an essential factor in covering any territory, and for several years, we have depended upon the DISPATCH to reach the buyers in the important Brainerd market.

Approximately seventy-five per cent of our advertising appropriation is spent in newspaper advertising, and we wish to express our appreciation to the newspapers for the part they have played in advancing our leadership in the washing machine industry.

We are most favorably impressed with the coverage of the DISPATCH in the Brainerd market. The fact that we are continuing to use your paper is an acknowledgment of and a tribute to the high character of the DISPATCH as an advertising medium. The willing and fair cooperation that has been extended to us has been of material assistance in our sales promotional activities.

The outlook for Maytag sales in your territory is very encouraging and we look forward to another prosperous year in 1930 and the continuance of our pleasant relations with your excellent newspaper.

PUTNEY ARRAIGNED IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Youth Charged With Stealing Diamond at Breezy Point in County Jail

Alleged Theft Took Place Last Thursday Evening as Employees
Inspected Home

Jesse W. Putney, truck driver from Breezy Point, was arraigned in municipal court yesterday afternoon, charged with grand larceny in the first degree. Putney is alleged to have taken a diamond ring, insured for $4,000 from the bedroom of Mrs. W. H. Fawcett at Breezy Point last Thursday evening.

The hearing yesterday was to determine whether or not there was sufficient evidence to bind Putney over to the district court. The case yesterday was continued over until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and the defendant remanded to the county jail.

The robbery is said to have occurred while Mrs. Fawcett had extended the courtesy to employees to inspect the Fawcett home. Nine employees were in the party and were being shown through the house.

Curious to see Mrs. Fawcett's bedroom employees requested permission of Mrs. Fawcett's maid to inspect it. The maid consented believing it would be permissible since Mrs. Fawcett was in the bathroom. The ring stolen from the dresser was the most expensive piece of jewelry left there by Mrs. Fawcett. Other jewelry lying there was not touched.

Mrs. Fawcett gave the employees an hour to confess the crime without making trouble for themselves. The hour passed without incident. Later, as the employees were being drilled, one by one, Putney confessed and led officers to the rear of his cottage where he had hidden the ring under a stone.

WILL FILM MISS BRAINERD ON TRIP

Governor of Alaska and Officials to Greet Honor Guests
at Juneau

TO SAIL ON ALAMEDA

All Efforts Being Combined to Make Trip a Lifetime
Memory

Somewhere, as you read this, a fast coast train is plying its way through some of the most beautiful and fascinating scenery in North America. That train is the North Coast Limited, and its destination is Seattle, modern port city of the Pacific coast.

In just a few weeks, 20 girls, one of them Brainerd, will board that treasure train at Minneapolis. They will comprise the party of honored guests on the most memorable journey of the new North Coast Limited. Every mile the scenic wonders and grandeur, every one of the 28 mountain ranges along the route of the flyer will be unfolded in all glory before the eyes of the charming guests on that trip.

The girls in the party will be the most popular young ladies of 20 north-west cities and will be selected by popular vote in those towns. Brainerd's representative is now being chosen through the medium of the Popular Girl Contest being sponsored by the Daily Dispatch and Public Theatres. The winner of this interesting contest will be named Miss Brainerd, an honor in itself, and she will join the other most popular girls when they begin the chaperoned two week's vacation trip on a special pullman car of the North Coast Limited.

Nor will the vacation trip end at Seattle, for there the girls will leave the train and will embark on the big and luxurious steamship, the Alameda, which will take them along the snow-capped mountain coast, north to Victoria, B. C. and then on and on until the fair vacation guests have set foot on that wonderful land of inspiration, Alaska.

There will be stop-overs along the way, too, to make the trip even more replete with thrills. For instance, the Governor of Alaska and other high officials of the American possession will welcome the girls at Juneau; and the girls will set foot on land at other quaint and interesting towns and cities along the route of the Alameda.

On board, too, there will be every thing to delight Miss Brainerd and her friends of the tour, for the Alameda is, in its appointments, virtually a modern hotel on water. The best of meals, deck games, music and dancing beneath the stars of the North Pacific waters—everything will combine to make the Alaska trip a grand, lifetime's memory.

Because all of Brainerd has become so keenly enthusiastic in helping to select Miss Brainerd, the Dispatch and Public Theatres have decided to record on film all the happy hours and all the glorious miles of the vacation tour. These motion pictures will then be shown at the local Public Theatres; and who won't want to see Miss Brainerd on this eventful vacation venture.

Voting is continuing all day during July for the naming of Miss Brainerd. Ballots are procurable at the Paramount theatre; 100 votes being given with each adult admission. Then, too, you may receive 500 votes for the girl of your choice by subscribing to the Daily Dispatch for a period of three months, 1,500 votes for each six months subscription and 4,000 votes are being given with each year's subscription. Cast your vote today for Miss Brainerd.

South Long Lake Resort is Enjoying Best Season in Its History

Wiedl's Shady Point, a popular resort on South Long Lake, is enjoying the best season of its existence, according to Louis Wiedl, manager. The resort has been very nearly filled since Decoration day, fishing having been exceptionally good. The prospects for the remainder of the season are the best.

The buildings, of which there are 13, have all been painted white with green screens and green roofs, making a pretty setting. Electric lights have also been installed in all cottages, power being taken from a Delco plant.

A number of picnics have been held including ten church, lodges, family gatherings and community picnics. Among the days already booked are one July 19 by the Danish Lutheran Sunday school; on July 20 by the American Sunday School Union; July 27 by the Bethlehem Lutheran and Bethel Lutheran Sunday schools; and August 3 by the First Lutheran church.

OLD FASHIONED REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

Opened at Full Gospel Assembly on Sunday, Many Attending

Evangelist Shirley E. Oliver opened an old fashioned revival campaign at the Full Gospel Assembly on Sunday, with good crowds in attendance at each service. One of the best of the meetings was held last evening, although not as many were present as on Sunday. Mr. Oliver brought messages on faith, salvation and prayer which were inspiring and edifying to those listening.

Mrs. Oliver, who sings well, sang old time gospel songs at each service which were enjoyed by all. It is well worth one's time to come just to hear Mrs. Oliver sing, said Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the church.

Among the subjects on which Rev. Oliver will speak on the following evenings are "Three Worlds and Three Systems," "The Feast is on," "God's Great Saturday Night" and "Profit and Loss." These are subject to change.

The meetings will continue each week night at 8 o'clock, with the possible exception of Saturday evening.

PUTNEY ARRAIGNED IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Youth Charged With Stealing Diamond at Breezy Point in County Jail

Alleged Theft Took Place Last Thursday Evening as Employees Inspected Home

Jesse W. Putney, truck driver from Breezy Point, was arraigned in municipal court yesterday afternoon, charged with grand larceny in the first degree. Putney is alleged to have taken a diamond ring, insured for $4,000 from the bedroom of Mrs. W. H. Fawcett at Breezy Point last Thursday evening.

The hearing yesterday was to determine whether or not there was sufficient evidence to bind Putney over to the district court. The case yesterday was continued over until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and the defendant remanded to the county jail.

The robbery is said to have occurred while Mrs. Fawcett had extended the courtesy to employees to inspect the Fawcett home. Nine employees were in the party and were being shown through the house.

Curious to see Mrs. Fawcett's bedroom employees requested permission of Mrs. Fawcett's maid to inspect it. The maid consented believing it would be permissible since Mrs. Fawcett was in the bathroom. The ring stolen from the dresser was the most expensive piece of jewelry left there by Mrs. Fawcett. Other jewelry lying there was not touched.

Mrs. Fawcett gave the employees an hour to confess the crime without making trouble for themselves. The hour passed without incident. Later as the employees were being grilled, one by one, Putney confessed and led officers to the rear of his cottage where he had hidden the ring under a stone.

WILL FILM MISS BRAINERD ON TRIP

Governor of Alaska and Officials to Greet Honor Guests at Juneau

TO SAIL ON ALAMEDA

All Efforts Being Combined to Make Trip a Lifetime Memory

Somewhere, as you read this, a fast coast train is plying its way through some of the most beautiful and fascinating scenery in North America. That train is the North Coast Limited, and its destination is Seattle, modern port city of the Pacific coast.

In just a few weeks, 20 girls, one of them Brainerd, will board that treasure train at Minneapolis. They will comprise the party of honored guests on the most memorable journey of the new North Coast Limited. Every mile the scenic wonders and grandeur every one of the 28 mountain ranges along the route of the flyer will be unfolded in all glory before the eyes of the charming guests on that trip.

The girls in the party will be the most popular young ladies of 20 north-west cities and will be selected by popular vote in those towns. Brainerd's representative is now being chosen through the medium of the Popular Girl Contest being sponsored by the Daily Dispatch and Public Theatres. The winner of this interesting contest will be named Miss Brainerd, an honor in itself, and she will join the other most popular girls when they begin the chaperoned two week's vacation trip on a special pullman car of the North Coast Limited.

Nor will the vacation trip end at Seattle, for there the girls will leave the train and will embark on the big and luxurious steamship, the Alameda, which will take them along the snow-capped mountain coast, north to Victoria, B. C. and then on and on until the fair vacation guests have set foot on that wonderful land of inspiration, Alaska.

There will be stop-overs along the way, too, to make the trip even more replete with thrills. For instance, the Governor of Alaska and other high officials of the American possession will welcome the girls at Juneau; and the girls will set foot on land at other quaint and interesting towns and cities along the route of the Alameda.

On board, too, there will be every thing to delight Miss Brainerd and her friends of the tour, for the Alameda is, in its appointments, virtually a modern hotel on water. The best of meals, deck games, music and dancing beneath the stars of the North Pacific waters—everything will combine to make the Alaska trip a grand, lifetime memory.

Because all of Brainerd has become so keenly enthusiastic in helping to select Miss Brainerd, the Dispatch and Public Theatres have decided to record on film all the happy hours and all the glorious miles of the vacation tour. These motion pictures will then be shown at the local Public Theatres; and who won't want to see Miss Brainerd on this eventful vacation venture.

Voting is continuing all all during July for the naming of Miss Brainerd. Ballots are procurable at the Paramount theatre; 100 votes being given with each adult admission. Then, too, you may receive 500 votes for the girl of your choice by subscribing to the Daily Dispatch for a period of three months, 1,500 votes for each six months subscription and 4,000 votes are being given with each year's subscription. Cast your vote today for Miss Brainerd.

South Long Lake Resort is Enjoying Best Season in Its History

Wied's Shady Point, a popular resort on South Long Lake, is enjoying the best season of its existence, according to Louis Wied, manager. The resort has been very nearly filled since Decoration day, fishing having been exceptionally good. The prospects for the remainder of the season are the best.

The buildings, of which there are 13, have all been painted white with green screens and green roofs, making a pretty setting. Electric lights have also been installed in all cottages, power being taken from a Delco plant. A number of picnics have been held including ten church, lodges, family gatherings and community picnics. Among the days already booked are one July 19 by the Danish Lutheran Sunday school; on July 20 by the American Sunday School Union; July 27 by the Bethlehem Lutheran and Bethel Lutheran Sunday schools, and August 3 by the First Lutheran church.

OLD FASHIONED REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

Opened at Full Gospel Assembly on Sunday, Many Attending

Evangelist Shirley E. Oliver opened an old fashioned revival campaign at the Full Gospel Assembly on Sunday, with good crowds in attendance at each service. One of the best of the meetings was held last evening, although not as many were present as on Sunday. Mr. Oliver brought messages on faith, salvation and prayer which were inspiring and edifying to those listening.

Mrs. Oliver, who sings well, sang old time gospel songs at each service which were enjoyed by all. It is well worth one's time to come just to hear Mrs. Oliver sing, said Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the church.

Among the subjects on which Rev. Oliver will speak on the following evenings are "Three Worlds and Three Systems," "The Feast is on," "God's Great Saturday Night" and "Profit and Loss." These are subject to change.

The meetings will continue each week night at 8 o'clock, with the possible exception of Saturday evening.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"

by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

EMILY DUANE and her friend, Pauline Pennington, disappear on Emily's wedding rehearsal day. Emily had gone to visit the hospital, but never arrived there. After leaving the Duane home, Pauline also vanishes. Later, Pauline's body is found in the ravine, and, close by, Emily's scarf.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.

THEY retired to the other end of the long room and talked among themselves. It was easier without Sayre, for though they all loved Emily, it was not the vital thing to them that it was to Rodney, and they began to feel the excitement of it all rising above the grief.

And, too, there was always hope. Whatever had happened, Emily might yet return safe and sound. Sayre's voice interrupted them. "People," he said, "come back here."

From his seat on the sofa he spoke like a magnate from his throne.

They trailed back, wondering. "This," said Rod, holding up the fur, "must be reported to the police. I wonder you haven't seen that before. I wonder I didn't see it sooner. It's most important evidence. We have no right to hold it back a moment. It's our duty to tell them—and, if they ask it, to turn it over to them."

"You're right, old man," Gibby said, realizing, after being told, the truth of the matter.

"Do you mean to-night?" asked Lamb.

"I think so. It's only a little after midnight, and those police chaps are not early birds. Want to telephone, Laurie?"

"Yes. What shall I say?"

"I think I'd say that we have a bit of what may be evidence, and shall we telephone about it, or will they toddle round?"

Lamb inwardly rejoiced that Sayre was at least coming out of his apathy enough to speak a little more lightly, and went to the booth.

He returned to say Lawlor would be right over.

The detective came and listened to the story.

He was greatly impressed, he seemed astounded, and his expression was deeply regretful.

He accepted their declarations that the fur was positively Emily's and that she had positively worn it when she left the house. Also their statement that Mrs. Pennington had not worn her fur, which was exactly like it.

"You think it important?" asked Gibby, trying to gauge the detective's mind.

"Vitality. At what time did McGuire give you this?"

"Just after they had taken Mrs. Pennington to the hospital. I said I would restore it to Mr. Pennington, as of course we assumed it to be hers."

"Of course. Well, I'll have to take it along," Lawlor sighed deeply. "Look here," he said, suddenly, "which left this house first, Mrs. Pennington or Miss Duane?"

"Why, I don't know," Betty said, taking it on herself to answer. "You see, Emily just flung a word to Mrs. Bell and myself to say proper good-bys to departing guests, as she would be away for a few minutes."

"You thought nothing of that?"

"Mercy, no. Why should I?"

"What time was that?"

"I don't know. About five, I guess."

"Well, did Mrs. Pennington go then?"

"Let me see, she—"

"I know this much," Sayre put in. "Emily said good-bye to the Penningtons, for I saw and heard her. Then she came to me and told me she was going over to the hospital, and she went immediately. I should say they left about the same time, within five minutes or so."

"Mrs. Pennington must have gone first," said Lawlor decidedly.

"How do you get that?" asked Gibby, concluding the police de-

"I propose to call in a celebrated detective to take up the matter of Miss Duane's disappearance," said Sayre.

over the ravine bridge and on her way before Mrs. Pennington appeared.

"Proving," said Burton Lamb, "that Miss Duane didn't tell Mrs. Pennington about the Laurence baby, and so threw her into a melancholy fit, which caused her to end her life. That it?"

"Something like that," said Lawlor.

"Do you think her fall was not an accident?" asked Rodney, his face suddenly changing.

"I'm almost certain it was not. The bridge rails are not worn or broken in any way."

"Somebody said they were."

"It may have looked so because the vines were broken and torn. They were so carefully kept that any imperfection shows at once. And at the place where Mrs. Pennington's fall occurred, they are greatly mangled."

"And you think she threw herself over?" Betty spoke sobbingly.

"I can't express any opinion about it, ma'am. It is all very mysterious, and this fur business makes the mystery deeper. In fact, it means that there must now be an inquest."

"An inquest? Whatever for?" cried Nell.

thoughtfulness. And I may say what you're doing a wise thing."

"Think a nice man," said Betty as the detective went away.

"Quicker-witted than I thought the police ones were," said Gibby, with a grudging admiration. His opinion of himself as a Sherlock Holmes was rapidly dwindling, for he realized he had done absolutely nothing as yet.

"An inquest! Think of it!" exclaimed Nell. "Do you suppose we can all go?"

"Sure," returned Pete. "They'll want us."

"My heavens! To testify, or whatever you call it?"

"Maybe. An inquest in Hillsdale is bound to be properly conducted. How'd you like to be in the witness box?"

"I'd love it," responded Nell, truthfully. "I'll give me a thrill I liked Pauline all right, but of course, I knew her only slightly, and Mr. Pennington I scarcely knew at all. I'm terribly sorry for him, but truly, all my sorrow and sympathy is for Roddy and our own crowd here of Emily's friends. Oh, where's Emily? I can't see through this fur business at all. To me it looks sort of—"

Bathtub Frowned On by People of Middle Ages

It was the boast of Queen Isabella of Spain that she had had but two baths, one when she was born and one when she was married. But alas, the poor queen, who befriended Columbus, according to legend, was given another after her death, in preparation for her burial. The children of Edward I of England were given baths on certain religious holidays; they averaged four a year. No wonder Voltaire characterized the Middle Ages as "A Thousand Years Without a Bath."

From the famous Roman baths came much of the rottenness of the decaying empire, but it is a question of debate whether or not there was a reason for this, or a mere coincidence. When the Barbarians entered Rome, in the reign of feeble Romulus Augustulus, they found him in the baths, a sad Caesar compared to the hardy Julius of an early and sterner day.

Bathing was considered so much a sin in early Christian days that the first Pope Gregory had to issue a decree to permit communicants to take baths. The decree permitted them to a moderate extent, and only on Sundays.—Exchange.

Photographer's Troubles

A photographer, compelled by the exigencies forced upon him by the physiognomies of his customers, hung a neatly framed sign in his studio bearing the epigram of Oliver Cromwell, spoken to the artist who painted him without the warts which are said to have ornamented his countenance: "Paint me as I am, moles and all, or, by my halidome, I won't pay for the portrait!"

To the gentle insinuation promulgated by this sign, one of the photographer's sitters added in pencil: "When I pay you, it will be for making me look handsomer than I am. When I wish to behold myself as I really appear, I can always look in the mirror."

Daring

"In 1890, a fashionable woman's costume weighed no more than eight ounces," says a writer in Harper's Bazar. "Greek looking garments which included the long, transparent chemise, slit open to as high as the hip, were worn over flesh tights, all underwear having been discarded. The result of such folly was what doctors of the period described as muslin diseases, otherwise catarrhal complaints. A record exists stating that during the winter of 1893 alone 60,000 women suffered from what was nothing else but consumption."

Justice in Abyssinia

In one respect the Abyssinian courts would meet the approval of that Shakespearean character who urged the killing of all lawyers. The legal profession is practically nonexistent in Abyssinia and each man tries his own case. For important cases there are regular courts presided over by appointed judges. The chief justice of Abyssinia rejoices in the title of "Breath of the King." For minor cases, however, impromptu courts are called and any passerby may be called on to act as judge.

Just a Taste

Three-year-old Betty Lou, who lives in a town, delights in trips to the farm with her next door neighbors. Recently while on one of these trips she saw the pet lamb fed from a bottle and was very much interested. After the bottle was emptied she thrust her little hand through the fence to pet the lamb. She drew it back hastily. When asked whether it bit her she replied:

"No, it just tasted my hand."

Make Practice of Giving

Giving is much more important in life than getting. And so much better. Let us be the first to give a friendly nod and smile, to speak first, give first, and if such a thing is necessary, forgive first and forget first.—Grit.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"

by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

EMILY DUANE and her friend, Pauline Pennington, disappear on Emily's wedding rehearsal day. Emily had gone to visit the hospital, but never arrived there. After leaving the Duane home, Pauline also vanishes. Later, Pauline's body is found in the ravine, and, close by, Emily's scarf.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.

THEY retired to the other end of the long room and talked among themselves. It was easier without Sayre, for though they all loved Emily, it was not the vital thing to them that it was to Rodney, and they began to feel the excitement of it all rising above the grief.

And, too, there was always hope. Whatever had happened, Emily might yet return safe and sound. Sayre's voice interrupted them.

"People," he said, "come back here."

From his seat on the sofa he spoke like a magnate from his throne.

They trailed back, wondering. "This," said Rod, holding up the fur, "must be reported to the police. I wonder you haven't seen that before. I wonder I didn't see it sooner. It's most important evidence. We have no right to hold it back a moment. It's our duty to turn it over to them."

"You're right, old man," Gibby said, realizing, after being told, the truth of the matter.

"Do you mean to-night?" asked Lamb.

"I think so. It's only a little after midnight, and those police chaps are not early birds. Want to telephone, Laramie?"

"Yes. What shall I say?"

"I think I'd say that we have a bit of what may be evidence, and shall we telephone about it, or will they toddle round?"

Lamb inwardly rejoiced that Sayre was at least coming out of his apathy enough to speak a little more lightly, and went to the booth.

He returned to say Lawlor would be right over.

The detective came and listened to the story.

He was greatly impressed, he seemed astounded, and his expression was deeply regretful.

He accepted their declarations that the fur was positively Emily's and that she had positively worn it when she left the house. Also their statement that Mrs. Pennington had not worn her fur, which was exactly like it.

"You think it important?" asked Gibby, trying to gauge the detective mind.

"Vitality. At what time did McGuire give you this?"

"Just after they had taken Mrs. Pennington to the hospital. I said I would restore it to Mr. Pennington, as of course we assumed it to be hers."

"Of course. Well, I'll have to take it along," Lawlor sighed deeply. "Look here," he said, suddenly, "which left this house first, Mrs. Pennington or Miss Duane?"

"Why, I don't know," Betty said, taking it on herself to answer. "You see, Emily just flung a word to Mrs. Bell and myself to say proper good-bys to departing guests, as she would be away for a few minutes."

"You thought nothing of that?"

"Merely, no. Why should I?"

"What time was that?"

"I don't know. About five, I guess."

"Well, did Mrs. Pennington go then?"

"Let me see, she—"

"I know this much," Sayre put in. "Emily said good-bye to the Penningtons, for I saw and heard her. Then she came to me and told me she was going over to the hospital, and she went immediately. I should say they left about the same time, within five minutes or so."

"Mrs. Pennington must have gone first," said Lawlor decidedly. "How do you get that?" asked Gibby, concluding the police detective was better than he had thought.

"Why, if Miss Duane had gone first, she would have gone on to the hospital and Mrs. Pennington couldn't have met her on the bridge."

"How do you know they did meet on the bridge?"

"How, otherwise, could Mrs. Pennington become possessed of Miss Duane's fur?"

"Perhaps Miss Duane dropped her fur piece as she was on her way to the hospital and Mrs. Pennington retrieved it," This from Lamb, who was thinking deeply.

"Perhaps, but that necessitates Miss Duane's having gone first."

"I can't see," put in Nell petulantly, "what earthly difference it makes which one went first."

"That's the difference. If Miss Duane went first, she was surely thoughtful. And I may say I think you're doing a wise thing."

"What a nice man," said Betty as the detective went away.

"Quicker-witted than I thought the police ones were," said Gibby, with a grudging admiration. His opinion of himself as a Sherlock Holmes was rapidly dwindling, for he realized he had done absolutely nothing as yet.

"An inquest! Think of it!" exclaimed Nell. "Do you suppose we can all go?"

"Sure," returned Pete. "They'll want us."

"My heavens! To testify, or whatever you call it?"

"Maybe. An inquest in Hillsdale is bound to be properly conducted. How'd you like to be in the witness box?"

"I'd love it," responded Nell, truthfully. "It'll give me a thrill. I liked Pauline all right, but of course, I knew her only slightly, and Mr. Pennington I scarcely knew at all. I'm terribly sorry for him, but truly, all my sorrow and sympathy is for Emily's friends. Oh, where's Emily? I can't see through this fur business, at all. To me it looks sort of—"

over the ravine bridge and on her way before Mrs. Pennington appeared."

"Proving," said Burton Lamb, "that Miss Duane didn't tell Mrs. Pennington about the Laurence baby, and so threw her into a melancholy fit, which caused her to end her life. That it?"

"Something like that," said Lawlor.

"Do you think her fall was not an accident?" asked Rodney, his face suddenly changing.

"The bridge rails are not worn or broken in any way."

"Somebody said they were."

"It may have looked so because the vines were broken and torn. They are so carefully kept that any imperfection shows at once. And at the place where Mrs. Pennington's fall occurred, they are greatly mangled."

"And you think she threw herself over?"

"I can't express any opinion about it, ma'am. It is all very mysterious, and this fur business makes the mystery deeper. In fact, it means that there must now be an inquest."

"An inquest? Whatever for?" cried Nell.

May Follow Carol in Throne Coup

Recent portrait study of Crown Prince Otto, pretender to the Hungarian throne, who has been living with his mother, the former Empress Zita, and his seven brothers and sisters in exile near Brussels. "In 1800, a fashionable woman's costume weighed no more than eight ounces," says a writer in Harper's Bazar. "Greek looking garments which included the long, transparent chemise, slit open to as high as the hip, were worn over flesh tights, all underwear having been discarded. The result of such folly was what doctors of the period described as muslin diseases, otherwise catarrhal complaints. A record exists stating that during the winter of 1803 alone 60,000 women suffered from what was nothing else but consumption."

Justice in Abyssinia

In one respect the Abyssinian courts would meet the approval of that Shakespearean character who urged the killing of all lawyers. The legal profession is practically nonexistent in Abyssinia and each man tries his own case. For important cases there are regular courts presided over by appointed judges. The chief justice of Abyssinia rejoices in the title of "Breath of the King." For minor cases, however, impromptu courts are called and any passerby may be called on to act as judge.

Just a Taste

Three-year-old Betty Lou, who lives in a town, delights in trips to the farm with her next door neighbors. Recently while on one of these trips she saw the pet lamb fed from a bottle and was very much interested. After the bottle was emptied she thrust her little hand through the fence to pet the lamb. She drew it back hastily. When asked whether it bit her she replied: "No, it just tasted my hand."

Make Practice of Giving

Giving is much more important in life than getting. And so much better. Let us be the first to give a friendly nod and smile, to speak first, give first, and, if such a thing is necessary, forgive first and forget first.—Grit.
